A Customized Experience for Your End User.

We get it. You deploy agents to your new client's workstations and all of a sudden your client is freaking out because there's a new icon showing up on their computer. The icon doesn't look anything like your company logo and your client is very confused. Having your own visual presence on your clients' computers is important, so we've made it easy to customize LabTech's system tray so you can give your clients the experience they expect.

End Users See Only What You Want Them to See

LabTech's built-in system tray allows for fast, easy branding of your managed services. Change the tray text to display your company name. Use your company logo as the tray icon or hide the icon altogether. You can even use your clients' company logo.

Put your best foot forward by offering any number of system tray functions. LabTech is highly customizable and offers a ton of out-of-the-box system tray options that make it easier for your clients to submit requests and communicate with you right from their machines. Available system tray functions include:

- Script or program execution for self-healing
- Localized caching setup
- Service ticket creation
- Screen capture capabilities
- Inventory update
- RSS feeds for industry blogs or other website feeds
- And more
